

Typical Conference Room Presentation System

This illustration shows a Knox RSIII Router and a TPC7 Controller used as the audio, video and control backbone for a typical corporate boardroom presentation system. This system could accommodate up to 12 audio and video devices such as computer systems or video players. Additional devices such as VTC Codecs, additional displays can also be incorporated into the system and controlled via the touch panel controller.

